Director Statement:

"No Place" plays on a snarky nickname for Indianapolis but it's also a frame of mind. When you're from no place, going nowhere and detached from everyone, it's easy not to care about anything. This film is about identity, accountability and what happens when you have to face the past in order to move forward. These themes are wrapped up in an Indy-based indie film that adheres to certain noir conventions but plays by its own rules.

Director's Bio:

Peter Matsoukas is a screenwriter, producer & director who has worked on films in New York City, Chicago, Vancouver & Indianapolis. He's also created behind-the-scenes documentaries for feature films.

'No Place'

You'll recognize plenty of Indianapolis in this neo-noir feature film about a grifter who finds himself drawn to the Circle City as his past and bad decisions catch up with him. Filmmakers shot most of the movie in March 2019 at Mass Ave.'s Burnside Inn, The Box media production space near 16th Street and Riverside Drive, Cornerstone Tasting House at 54th Street and College Avenue, and Al's Modern Clothing & Shoes in Castleton.
